Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

Art Unit: 2645

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

6. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The term "which system" is not clearly defined. It is unclear what is referred by the "which system". Does it refer to the "a messaging system" (line 1) or "distributed front-end messaging system" (line 1)?

7. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The phrase "the front-end messaging system" (line 2) is not clearly defined. It is unclear the cited phrase refers to "one distributed front-end messaging system" or "centralized front-end messaging system".

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

8. Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hogan et al (US: 5619554).

For claims 1, 2, 4, 8, 14, 15, 16, Hogan et al teach on Fig. 13 and Fig. 4, a messaging system for multiple users.

Hogan et al teach on item 1302 Fig. 13, a plurality of voice message servers (claimed “at least one distributed front-end messaging system”).

Hogan et al teach on item 1304 Fig. 13, column 15 line 26-27, database (claimed “centralized data store”) which associates with the voice message server. The database stores voice messages (claimed “storing data associated with users”).

Hogan et al teach on column 3 line 43-46, storing voice packets retrieved from the database in a buffer (claimed “at least one cache means”) for playback. The played voice message is in dependence on the data stored in the buffer.

Regarding claim 3, Hogan et al teach on item 904 Fig. 13, front-end distributor (claimed “centralized front-end messaging system”) associates with database.

Regarding claim 5, Hogan et al teach on column 15 line 42-43, front-end distributor (claimed “centralized front-end messaging system”) provides voice message services (claimed “at least one messaging function”).

Regarding claim 6, Hogan et al teach on column 15 line 55-60, the front-end distributor (claimed “centralized front-end messaging system”) distributes voice messages to voice message server (claimed “distributed front-end messaging system”). The front-end distributor must identify the voice message server for distribution of the voice messages.

Regarding claim 7, Hogan et al teach on column 26 line 34-41, operator data includes ANI (claimed “a calling number”) and called party number.

Regarding claim 9, the database (item 1304 Fig. 13) as taught by Hogan et al must have configuration data (database configuration).

Regarding claim 10, Hogan et al teach on item 334 Fig. 13, VRU (claimed “call answering”).

Regarding claims 11, 17, Hogan et al teach on column 3 line 19, call processing system (reads on claimed “subscriber access function”).

Regarding claim 12, Hogan et al teach on item 1302 Fig. 13, a plurality of independent voice message servers (reads on claimed “a respective voice mail domain”).

Regarding claim 13, Hogan et al teach on item 102 Fig. 1, a switch.
